An effective date for the public report covering the Ke Kilohana condominium project (the "Project") has not yet been issued by the State of Hawai'i Real Estate Commission (the "REC"). As such, the developer may not enter into binding sales contracts with prospective purchasers, collect any moneys from prospective purchasers or anyone on behalf of prospective purchasers, or require or request that prospective purchasers execute any document (other than a nonbinding pre-registration agreement, if offered by the developer in its discretion). Only after the REC has issued an effective date for the developer's public report for the Project ("Report"), said Report has been delivered to prospective purchasers, and the other requirements of Hawaii Revised Statutes § 514B-86 have been met, may the developer enter into binding sales contracts with prospective purchasers.

Ward Village is a proposed master-planned development in Honolulu, Hawai'i that does not yet exist.
